BRIDE VICTIM OF MURDER MYSTERY

SUFFOLK COUNTY AUTHORITIES CONVINCED THEY WILL SOON LOCATE HER SLAYER.

(Special from United Press.)

Islip, L. I., Oct. 22.—Satisfied that the victim of the murder mystery which has puzzled them since the skeleton of a woman was found in the woods near here early this week is Mrs. Anna Mueller, a bride of a few months and prior to her marriage, a maid in the home of Isaac Seligman, the New York banker, the Suffolk county authorities are convinced today that they will soon locate her murderer. An expert identification came from Germany. The German consul's advice was that the victim was Frau Mueller who formerly lived at Weymouth, Mass., in central Germany. In February, 1918, she and her husband, Otto Mueller, an architect, sailed for America. Both are said to be missing for some time. The initials on the watch, "A. L.", strengthen the opinion of the police. Anna Latter came to America for the first time in 1896 as a maid in a family named Sanders. She worked for them until they returned to Germany and then she obtained employment with the wife of a man in Denver. Later she lived in Chicago and in 1902 came to New York and was engaged as a maid by Mrs. Seligman. She worked for her two years and in 1904 began caring for an invalid in Great Barrington, Mass. Here she met Otto Mueller who lived at Far Rockaway at that time but whose home was in Newark, N. J.

Mueller and Anna Latter were married in Newark on February 6, 1908, by Rev. Max Hirsch, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical church. Three days later they sailed for Hamburg to spend their honeymoon. They visited the bride's relatives and returned to the United States two months later. Mrs. Mueller visited friends in Newark on April 5, 1908, and friends of her in the New Jersey city declare that she and her husband left Newark for New York that night and have not since been heard from. Anna Latter's relatives in Germany have not heard from her since that time.

Mrs. Mueller had much valuable jewelry which had been given to her by various employers and was also understood by her friends to have considerable money which she had inherited. One of her brothers is said to be an officer in the German army. The police are trying to find out what became of Mueller. They point out that both he and his bride may have been murdered and the bodies disposed of in different sections. With this end in view, a general alarm has been sent out and the police everywhere are bending every endeavor to locate either or Mueller.

There is a possibility that Mrs. Mueller may have been known as Mrs. Mary Reichold. That is the name of the woman owner of the land where the body was found and it developed today that no trace of her has been found since she purchased the plot. At that time Mrs. Reichold lived at 218 East 10th street and installments due on the property and taxes have remained unpaid. While all efforts to locate the owner have failed, examination of the skeleton has shown that there was a bullet hole in the side and it is believed by the coroner that the victim was shot through the heart as well as through the head.

SHE WAS PLEASANTLY

SURPRISED.
 Miss H. E. Bell, Wausau, Wis., writes: "Before I commenced to take Foley's Kidney Pills I had severe pains in my back, could not sleep, and was greatly troubled with headache. The first few doses of Foley's Kidney Pills gave me relief, and two bottles cured me. The quick results surprised me, and I can honestly recommend them." F. B. Brill and Curtis Pharmacy, local agents.

GENERAL LEE.

His Personal Influence and His Military Prowess.

In looking for the source of Lee's personal influence we have to go back, I think, to the habit of inherited respect which the people of the south paid to social position. It was not born of a feeling of subservience, however, for the poorest "cracker" had an unmistakable and self-conscious dignity about him. He always walked up to and faced the highest with an air of equality. No, this latent respect was a natural response on the part of men of low estate to good manners and off displayed sympathy. Lee by his connection through birth and marriage with the most distinguished and best families of Virginia represented the superior class. Moreover, that he was a Lee of Virginia and by marriage the head of the Washington family had from one end of the south to the other a weight which the present commercial, mammon worshipping age knows or cares but little about.

Again, Nature in one of her moods had made him the balanced product in manners and looks of the well bred and aristocratic traditions of the gentleman transmitted and ingrained at an early age through the cavaliers into Virginia life. But for his military prowess he had something vastly more efficacious than ancestry or filling the mold of well bred traditions. He had the generative quality of simple effective greatness—in other words, an unspotted, serenely lofty character whose qualities were reactive, reaching every private soldier and making him unconsciously braver and better as a man.—Morris Schaff in Atlantic.

THE MISSING TURK.

An Incident in the Stage Career of Sarah Bernhardt.

Sarah Bernhardt was once playing at Marseilles in a spectacular play in which she made her entire accompaniment by six Turkish slaves. A line on the program announced that these six Turks would accompany Mme. Bernhardt, but when the time came for them to go on one of the youngsters had disappeared. Sarah mustered the five in order and made her entrance with a grand flourish. The house was crowded, but not a handclap greeted her as she appeared. Then a still, small voice in the gallery murmured something in an indignant tone. Fifty voices immediately took up the strain, and in ten seconds more the whole house was shouting the same phrase.

Bernhardt strained every nerve to catch what they were complaining about. She knew the phrase began with "Maquette," but the rest of it was lost in the general hubbub. For a full minute the tumult continued. Then Sarah, muttering things below her breath, rushed like a fury down to the footlights. In the front row the actress had spotted one man who was not taking part in the hullabaloo. Pointing at him, the actress exclaimed sternly: "You seem to be the only sensible person in the house. Tell me what on earth they are kicking up this row for?"

The man rose, bowed to the actress and remarked in very bad American-French, "Madam, you are shy one Turk."
